"In an age where clowns reveal our hidden self, Clint Bolster's clown is both sharp and insightful, yet aware of the provocations designed to unlock insights. His clown/s invite us to unite as we focus on the particular, the unusual, and the rare. A great performer, teacher and human, Clint brings all of himself and leaves us with a unique insight about ourselves after seeing the world through the tears and the fears of a clown, which always provokes laughter from places rarely observed in our daily life. BOOFF, like Clint's other clowns, is a masterwork that will leave you feeling uncomfortably settled. In a world of clowns where leadership is no barrier to success, it is good to see the clown within ourselves and invite them into our midst so that we may learn their masterfully mischievous mannerisms. (PS: Clowns learn by observing us.)."

"Homunculus Theatre was a wonderful experience for our students. It's rare that such a well organised and skilfully crafted show makes it out to our remote school. The show itself was thoroughly entertaining and enjoyed by all age groups from Prep to Year 6. The workshop following the show was engaging and catered for all of our students and their ability levels. I would recommend Homunculus Theatre to any school in Australia. "

"Thank you to Homunculus Theatre Co., Clint Bolster and Lauren who came this week to perform a show that demonstrated the post-WWII Theatre movement known as Absurdism. Both of you are brilliant clowns! Thanks for the black humour and physical gags too! The Classes 8-12 laughed heartily and enjoyed 'Mandarin' becoming part of the show along with Brendan Hook and Jan Baker-Finch who had starring cameos acting out a scene from an Absurdist drama, The Chairs. However, it was Kai Haywood-Livingstone, armed with his trusty beanie, who stole the show as he improvised with Lauren a scene from Rhinoceros! Well done Kai! What a great dramapacked day of experiences!"

“Clint established a contagious energy from the very beginning that had the students dramatically engaged from the moment they entered the workshop. He tailored the activities to inspire, involve and challenge around 40 students of all different learning and physical abilities. It was inspiring to witness students flourish with confidence and feel a sense of ownership or pride in what they had achieved dramatically and more importantly, what they had discovered about themselves within the workshop. This workshop not only extended on what students are studying in class, but based on the immediate feedback from students, it will be an hour and a half that they will cherish in their memories for many years to come.”

★★★★★ - Samanda Sankowsky, Drama Teacher, Cavendish Road SHS

“There was a freedom of expression and physicalisation, and a real willingness to take risks-a joy to see in students of that age bracket. I have no hesitation recommending Homunculus as wonderful workshop facilitators and performers.

★★★★★ - Lauren Cossettini, Curriculum Drama Co-ordinator - Sheldon College, QLD

“The Satire workshop that Clint from Homunculus ran with my Year 11 Drama students was just brilliant!! The activities he lead them through were engaging, useful and heaps of fun. The students were incredibly positive about the experience and have learnt a lot of new ideas and strategies to use in their own work. We will definitely be wanting to work with Homunculus again!”

Artist In Residence Programs

Artist In Residence Programs have the potential to offer students an experience they will remember and treasure far beyond school.

Our approach is collaborative and student centered. The process is always ridiculously fun and the performance outcomes fantastic. Options range from a day to a full semester and can be tailored to fit your requirements and timetable. Shorter term residencies may involve intensive workshops over a week or several weeks. Longer term residencies usually involve the collaborative development of an original work and/or full scale production.

Please contact us for more details.

“By the second day, the mask work had progressed from solo to the ensemble. The students had learned different ways to work within the ensemble and to be a catalyst for change. They experimented with taking control of and driving an idea and then letting the idea drive us.

“The mask work really helped the students to separate their physicalisation and their facial work and to realise that voice does not have to be the dominant factor in performance. Many of these things may seem obvious but students often struggle with them.

“Homunculus were able to break through barriers. This was by far the best Artist in Residence we have had in years.

“ I recently attended a Commedia/Clown workshop run by Clint at The Game Changer Drama Australia and Drama New Zealand Conference. I can honestly say his workshop was the highlight of the entire three-day conference! Clint was enthusiastic, encouraging and approachable from the moment we entered the room. It was clear that he knew his content and was excited to share his experience with us.

“ I was asked to participate in the Shawn mask activity which, with Clint's guidance, gave me confidence and had everyone in stitches. This also allowed me to experience what it's like to be a student and performing in front of others. I was very grateful for that opportunity. Not only did I have a great time in the workshop, I learnt valuable skills that I can add to my repertoire of skills. I am eager to have Clint come to my high school and perform for my students!”
